Plan made to build student center

By Thomas Turcotte
Editor

Since November, the Student Life Committee, chaired by Thamir Kadouri, president of the Student Leadership Coalition, and co-chaired by Sister Geraldine Warthling, vice president of student affairs, has been considering and planning the transformation of "The Cage" into a student center. Tom Morrison, a representative of the Diocese of Saint Petersburg, visited the site and assisted the committee in their efforts.

The renovations are designed to attract more students to the center. Alterations include a bar, an arcade, an improved game area, a new stage and new tables and chairs. A potential layout of the new student center will appear in the next issue.

Due to the fact that completing all of these renovations may not be financially possible at this time, The Student Life Committee would like to know which additions the students feel should receive priority. Student suggestions can be submitted to the Student Leadership Coalition office or the office of student activities which are both located in the first floor west wing of Saint Edward

Hall.

The committee realizes "The Cage" is a popular place for faculty, staff and administrators for their weekday lunches, and the new center is not intended to detract from this use. These changes are only intended to provide additional incentives to the students for using the center. The Student Center will fall under the jurisdiction of the Student Activities office.

Residential Life prepares to begin renovations

By Beth Roberts
Business Manager

Residential Life, along with Marriott Plant Operations, is launching a massive summer renovation project for the residents of Henderson and Benoit residence halls. Approximately $900,000 will be needed to make these renovations a complete success. Plant Operations is currently contracting with different construction agencies in order to make the residence halls more compatible with the needs of campus life.

Included in the renovations are new AC units to be installed, new movable furniture to replace the old heavy furniture now tolerated by the residents, gutting out the closets allowing the room to be more spacious, and replacing the red vanities with a more modern style. These remarkable renovations will make residential life more suitable and comfortable for the residents of Saint Leo College.

Residential Life appreciates and welcomes any comments that you would like to offer to better your residence halls. Bring all ideas, comments, and suggestions to Saint Edwards Hall or phone ext. 8266. If residents would like to see an example of the renovations, pictures are available in the Residential Life office.

HRM brings outside employers

The Hotel & Restaurant Management program has an exciting list of its recent activity on campus. Students of the program have had the opportunity to take field trips and tours of various establishments in the tri-county area. About 18 students took a tour of the Tampa Bay Center, where they had a hands-on look at the complete operation of the building's facilities. Some students also took a two and a half hour complete tour of Saddlebrook Resort and had the chance to see what the site offers to its many guests and residents.

The Hotel & Restaurant Management program offers a variety of career opportunities that can contain some area of interest for many students. Many of them will be on campus interviewing for future employment. The schedule of employers for future job opportunities are as follows:

February 24:

A representative from the Walt Disney Dolphin Hotel operated by the Sheraton will give a presentation at 11 a.m. and will be conducting interviews from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

March 2:

A representative from Walt Disney will give a presentation at 9 a.m. in Duncan

Lounge and will be conducting interviews from 10 a.m. to 5 a.m.

March 11:

Chili's Restaurant will have a presentation at 9 a.m. in Duncan Lounge.

March 25 and 26:

General Mills will give a presentation from 11 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. and will be conducting interviews from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. All interviews will be held in Conference Room 10 of the Faculty Office Building, and you must schedule time slot in advance.

On March 1, Nancy Micione, human resource manager for Hyatt Regency West Shore, will be delivering a presentation on the hotel business at 12 p.m. in Duncan Lounge.

A further tentative schedule of events will be posted in the future, and the presentations are open to all interested students. If there are any questions, contact Rebecca Olsen at 8468 or Beverly Andrews, administrative assistant at 8309.

Olsen, associate director of the program, is extremely excited about the many job opportunities that are available to students, who wish to find employment in the field. Olsen especially hopes to find many future contacts for the graduating seniors this year.

The Delta Epsilon Sigma National Honor Society will hold its two annual events this semester.

The first of the two is the high school Brain Bowl on Friday, March 12. In this event, ten local high schools come to Saint Leo College to compete at the district level for entrance into the state competition. The event has a question and answer format covering most of the major academic departments at the schools. Two teams of four compete in each match. Several matches are held during the day.

The Honor Society needs 13 people to be present from 8 am until 4 pm. The group itself can only fill a portion of the slots and asks any organizations or individuals to assist them. Everyone is welcome to volunteer to fill any of the needed time slots. Interested parties should stop by the Office of Enrollment Management located on the second floor of Saint Francis Hall.

The second event is the Academic Awards/Induction Banquet which is to be held on April 19. At the dinner, the various departments present award to outstanding students in their disciplines. The Honor Society officially inducts all new members for the year. Potential members are contacted at the beginning of each semester. Qualifications are a 3.5 cumulative G.P.A. and at least sixty credit hours.

The Honor Society is also considering potential future plans. The group may, in the future, offer tutors to students in various academic disciplines free of charge. The Honor Society's purpose is to foster intellectual achievement and would like to assist students having academic difficulties.

If the group follows through with this plan then the various departments will receive names of students in the Honor Society who are willing to serve as tutors. Students will be encouraged to contact their teachers or departments if they wish to receive assistance. The Honor Society welcomes any written reactions to this plan. Students wishing to offer their comments should deliver them in writing to the office of Enrollment Management. Please note, the Honor Society will not go forth with this plan unless sufficient need for said services is determined by the written reactions.

The Honor Society meets on most Thursdays at 5 p.m. in CH3. Anyone wishing to contact them can do so through the office of Enrollment Management.

EDITORIAL

Is hiring from within a good idea?

By Thomas Turcotte
Editor

This editorial is designed to present the pros and the cons of using graduate students instead of Saint Leo students to fill the role of Head Resident. Instead of taking a side on this issue, I have decided to present both cases in an objective light and let the community of Saint Leo College decide for itself. One can find the facts of this issue in the story on pg. entitled

These are the pros presented by Charlie Mackie, director of residential life:

First, the graduate students can bring fresh ideas to the campus. Second, they will be generally older students and, therefore, normally have a higher level of maturity. Third, they are likely to have more experience than head residents chosen from Saint Leo students would have. He also mentioned that these new graduate students would have a higher degree of commitment, but later refuted his own point by adding that the degree would be no higher than the students currently in place.

I have been listening to the views of others, and these are the two primary cons that seem to have arisen: First, graduate students from other areas will be not be familiar with the workings of the college. They will lack an understanding of how things operate on this campus whereas, current head residents have had an opportunity as students and resident assistants to become familiar with the system here. Second and finally, these new head residents will have no familiarity with the students of Saint Leo College, whereas, the current head residents have had time prior to their post to get to know many of the students here.

These are the views with which I have come into contact. No conclusion is drawn here. That is for you to decide on your own. Your own views on this or any other topic are welcome as letters to the editor.

SLISA provides forum on interracial couples

By Kimberly Weissman
News Editor

The Saint Leo International Student's Association has been keeping busy by planning various activities while preparing for International Week in March.

On February 3, S.L.I.S.A. had interracial couples speak about their relationships. The speakers included students of Saint Leo College, who told the audience of reactions they had received from family members, friends, and others. One speaker said, "It's just like dating anybody else except that the person's skin is a different color." The couples shared their experiences of meeting and explained how their relationships progressed day by day.

On February 16, two students gave a brief history of African culture. The speeches were very informative and tied in well with Black History Month.

S.L.I.S.A. invites all interested students to their next meeting on February 23. A guest speaker will be coming from the Tampa A.I.D.S. Network to discuss what each day of life is like for a person with A.I.D.S.

S.L.I.S.A. has meetings every Tuesday at 6:30p.m. in Crawford Hall Room 4. Everyone is welcome to attend. S.L.I.S.A. invites you to come and help plan for International Week.

Doran appointed assoc. vp of academic affairs

Special to the Monarch

Dr. Daniel R. Hoeber, SLC vice president for academic affairs, has announced the appointment of Dr. Edwin J. Doran to the position of associate vice president for academic affairs. Dr. Doran will assume responsibilities for the Center for Distance Learning, which encompasses all of the non-traditional programs: Weekend College, the combined programs (2+2) with Central Florida Community College and Santa Fe Community College, teacher recertification, off-site classes at locations throughout the state, and resident centers at 12 military establishments as far north as Virginia and as far west as Louisiana.

He currently serves as chairman of the department of general business administration and professor of business on the SLC faculty. He is also a member of the Board of Trustees, where he serves on the business affairs committee.

Doran came to Saint Leo in 1990 from the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, CA. where he was a faculty member of the Defense Management Education Center. He was a curriculum developer and lecturer who taught analytical decision-making to senior officers and civilian officials of the United States and 75 friendly nations.

As a businessman and entrepreneur, Dr. Doran has served as president of a real estate firm and founder of a successful computer service bureau.

During his first career as a Marine Corps officer, from which he retired as a lieutenant colonel, he managed the organization that was responsible for the operational testing of new, automated weapon systems. Earlier in his military career, he supervised the design, development and implementation of main frame computers-based management information systems.

He served in Vietnam in 1968-69 as an artillery officer, and was awarded the Bronze Star with Combat V.

Doran received his bachelor of arts in economics from the University of Pennsylvania, his master of science in management from the Naval Postgraduate School, and his MBA and his Ph. D. in business from the University of Santa Clara. He also earned a certificate in the field of employee relations.

"Dr. Doran's lengthy service in the military, particularly his work in higher education in the military, should serve all of us well as he assumes this new role," said Dr. Daniel R. Hoeber, SLC vice president for academic affairs. "In his present position at Saint Leo he has worked closely with CDL programs other than those connected directly to education through the military. His having taught not only in day-campus programs but also in varied CDL delivery systems provides him with direct experience vital to an understanding of some of the diversity within our educational system."

Doran was selected "Business Professor" of both the Spring 1991 and Fall 1992 semester by the SLC student chap-

Dr. Edwin J. Doran, the new associate president for academic affairs.

The Saint Leo College Chapter of the International Food Service of Executive Association is proud by establishing a name for itself this semester on campus.

The I.F.S.E.A. is an organization that offers students tremendous opportunities in networking, scholarships and benefits, with certification in different areas of food service. Its mission is to enhance students to a professional level through education with workshops, conferences, guest speaker presentations, and tours of various facilities. Many of these events are geared to help the students learn what the business world offers and to prepare them for the challenges of the real world.

The club was formed last year but never fully got off the ground. Alfonso Fuminaya, I.F.S.E.A. president, says, "With my initiative and enthusiasm, I plan to get the club really going this semester. We can accomplish all of our goals with a lot of hard-work. Fuminaya credits new Hotel & Management Program Associate Director Rebecca Olsen for the positive turn around in the program. "She's really organized and has a lot to offer the students."

The activities scheduled for February are: February 17- a raffle drawing, with prizes that include dinners at various restaurants in the area. Contact I.F.S.E.A. for tickets; February 26- members are scheduled to have dinner at the Olive Garden Restaurant. This gives the club a chance to socialize, as well as evaluate menu, service, style of food, and the restaurant's overall appearance.

The officers of I.F.S.E.A. are: Alfonso Fuminaya, president, Beth Wohl, vice-president, Michael Poey, secretary, Chris Drapeau, treasurer, and Beth Callan, committee chairperson.

The club is open to everyone on campus and is strongly recommended for Hotel & Restaurant Management and Business majors. Meetings are held every Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. in Crawford 4. With the support of the students, the organization can look forward to a busy, successful semester.

Circle K seeks Walk-A-Thon sponsors

By Kimberly Weissman
News Editor

Circle K International has always been known for and prides itself on its volunteer service throughout the campus and community. Though the club offers as much help to every organization as it can, its next project is in need of your help too.

On February 28, the Suncoast Children's Dream Fund will be conducting a Walk-A-Thon, donating its profits to the organization and the children it serves.

The Suncoast Children's Dream Fund is a non-profit charitable organization chartered by the state of Florida. The all-volunteer board of directors is comprised of hard-working professionals in the community who care a great deal about children. They meet twice a month to discuss matters pertinent to the Fund and review requests for future dream projects.

The children helped by the program come from a variety of sources, mainly referral from the medical community.

The Suncoast Children's Dream Fund says of itself, "Our philosophy is simple.

We were all kids once; we all had dreams. If well children can't always get what they want, then what happens to the dreams of seriously-ill children? Our organization works hard to see that their dreams can come true."

Some dreams that came true were bikes, cameras, trips, and even a remote control. In the past, many families of seriously-ill children have been sent by the Dream Fund to Disney World. Depending on the request, the Dream Fund tries its hardest to accomplish the dream of a small child. Whether a dream is big or small in a child's eye, all constitute equal weight and value to the Dream Fund.

Circle K International needs sponsors for the Walk-A-Thon and encourages all organizations on campus to participate in this event. Interested sponsors can contact Becky Buller at 8679 or Rose Alvaro at 8554. Not only does C.K.I. need and appreciate your help, but imagine the invaluable reward you would receive by knowing that you helped contribute to making a child's dream come true.

Mackie implements changes

By Thomas Turcotte
Editor

Recently, Charlie Mackie, the director of residential life, decided to alter the head resident selection process by employing graduate students instead of Saint Leo students.

In the past, head residents were selected because they were returning resident assistants that exhibited good communication skills and leadership skills, and had fulfilled R.A. responsibilities beyond the call of duty.

Now, under the new policy Saint Leo College will employ graduate students with resident assistant or leadership experience, from throughout the country to fill the role of the new graduate head. This is very common among United States colleges and universities. The University of Wisconsin publishes the Placement Exchange which contains brief information on many potential G.H.A.s.

Mackie will conduct an extensive interviewing process to sift through the many possibilities and determine the most promising choices.

Any current head residents will have the option of retaining their position until graduation

Some of the potential pros and cons to this situation will be presented in an objective forum format on the editorial page.

By Thamir Kaddouri

Welcome, students, to the month of February! I know that you are all getting stressed out with your studies and are looking for a positive way to direct your frustrations, right? Well in case you have forgotten, we have acres of beautiful, scenic land in which you can run raging, or better yet, combine it with all that energy and move in a more productive direction.

The way to do this is simple, and because I am sure that you are dying to find out what it is, I will tell you. GET INVOLVED! There are numerous things that are going on around you that affect "student life" here at Saint Leo College.

In case you have not heard, the Student Life Council is an organization composed of faculty, administrators, and "us," the students. This group is devoted to improving student life here at Saint Leo. For some time, the main focus of this organization has been a "student center" - one that would provide a place for entertainment, relaxation, information, and a club-like atmosphere. Well, I know that you have heard many different stories about what is to become of this student center, while, until now, nothing has. Well believe me, there are definite plans in the works right at this very moment. But if your curiosity still pushes you, to investigate what may sound like mere rumor, then I cordially invite you to do so.

Although both you and I make up the student body, it is I who am the voice that speaks for you. So what I ask of you is simply to let me know what it is you wish to see on campus, particularly in the student center. Then together, we can bring these things about - the things that you wish to see. I thank you for your time and interest, and look forward to reporting to you in the next issue of the Monarch.

LEISURE

Sincerely Yours,

Take two aspirin...

Dear Sincerely Yours,

How do I properly go about settling a disagreement I had with a professor? I'm scared that our difference of opinion in a recent class discussion may affect my grade. Help!

-Fear Of Failure

Dear Fear of Failure,

Well, since I don't know you, the professor, or the actual situation, I can only suggest some ways in which you can solve your problem. Go to the professor and tell him of your concern over the disagreement you had in class. If it's a difference of opinion, the professor cannot hold it against you when preparing your final grade. Maybe you have preconceived notions about the whole thing, and your professor has forgotten about whatever may have occurred. You apparently won't feel at ease until you talk to him, so make an appointment as soon as possible!

-Sincerely Yours

Dear Sincerely Yours,

I am trying to watch my weight, but I am so frustrated every time I walk into the cafeteria. Why can't there be a selection of lite products such as lite-salad dressing, lite bread, and foods with less grease? Though I love the frozen yogurt, I can't live on it alone! Please help me before I go crazy.

-Watching Weight

Dear Watching Weight,

I couldn't agree with you more! Though the food has greatly improved with a delicious fruit selection, there is a strong need for foods that cater to the health conscious individuals. Try talking to the manager and staff in the cafeteria and suggest that they plan a better variety of healthy foods. If more students make an issue of the food in the cafeteria, there would be a strong demand to accommodate their needs.

-Sincerely Yours

Nail problems

Brittle nails indicate a nutrient deficiency. Researchers in England discovered that "a shortage of iron in the nail seems to be a sign of iron deficiency anemia."

The research found that five women who suffered from iron-deficiency anemia also had brittle nails. After supplement with iron, however, the nails weren't brittle anymore.

The link between iron and brittle nails is an example of how nail condition may signal the presence of more serious health problems.

"Certain changes in the nails appearance and chemical content may be warning flags that pop up years in advance of actual disease" Prevention says. Researchers are beginning to see nail as "a major diagnostic tool of the future - a window on the inner processes of the body." So if you notice changes in the texture or color of your nails it would be wise to see a doctor.

Ron's World

By Ron Broz
Copy Editor

By God, I will write something funny! I will and you can't stop me! My wit is endless!

Endless, I say!

I laugh in the face of Writer's Block and resist it as the mountain resists the gentle summer rain!

S#!*^&^$@?%$#!&$S^#S@^?!...

Well. That didn't accomplish much, did it?

Let's see.....

Let's talk about "Cool People". From this point on, we will refer to them as Cool Guy (just imagine a big CG on the chest of a caped super being).

Different variations of Cool Guy can be found anywhere on campus at almost any time of the day or night (except before 2:30 A.M. on friday or saturday night. After that though, Cool Guy can be found praying to the porcelain god for forgiveness).

Cool Guy can usually be seen wearing sunglasses (sometimes even on cloudy days) and a shirt sporting numbers, some team name, or both. Cool Guy's posture, when in class, is one of relaxed, sometimes nearly sleeping, lack of concern.

Favorite Cool Guy activities include loud belching, barking or making woo-woo sounds, being generally loud for no reason, and throwing perfectly good fruit at pavement and buildings, usually hitting them in spite of the amazing, high-speed ability of buildings and pavement to dodge these attempts.

For all of their daytime noise-making activities, Cool Guys can also be nocturnal creatures. To observe them in this environment, one need only try to go to bed at a reasonable hour, and then listen to the vacuous sounds of Cool Guys frolicking and chasing each other in the hall.

If you poke your head out into the hall and don't see anyone, don't worry, they usually leave trail sign in the form of dip spit, shaving cream, peanut shells, etc.

Cool Guys are everywhere. They come from all walks of life in all shapes, sizes, and levels of potential to irritate. Fortunately, since they gather together at every available opportunity, they are easy to spot and step around; a good idea, since one of the only things a Cool Guy likes more than throwing fruit is ridiculing people who aren't Cool Guys.

The only thing left is a tip from me to you:

When you see an entire table of Cool Guys at dinner making noise, throwing food, etc., remember to sit very still - one wrong move and they could stampede.

-RON

P.S.- Remember the editorial, way back in the second issue, about the future for the greeks on campus? The one that talked about how fraternities would have to improve their grades? Seems kind of prophetic now, eh? (SAE-R.I.P.)

published in USA TODAY during the week of May 9, 1993.

"This contest is exciting because it promotes awareness on our college campuses of a lesser-known but widespread national problem," said Melissa Snyder, USA TODAY vice-president/marketing.

"Being able to read enables one to 'see the world,'" said Jim Baumann, vice-president, Follett College Bookstores. "Follett is proud to play a part in encouraging those who can read to help those who cannot."

To enter the contest, students will develop an advertisement 13 inches wide by 21 inches deep promoting the cause of literacy through volunteerism in local communities. The advertisement can include any length of copy, form of illustration or photography. A short paragraph explaining the design concept must be attached to all entries, along with the entry form which is available exclusively at Follett College Bookstores. Entries, by individuals or teams, must be submitted by April 15, 1993.

Entries will be judged by a panel of advertising experts and USA TODAY staff. The winner will be chosen primarily on the basis of originality of concept behind the ad.
