Saint Leo Says Farewell to Christine and Melody

By Derick Headley

While the Florida Highway Patrol continued to investigate the fatal car accident of January 22 involving Saint Leo students Christine Anderson, Melody Sanders Closs, and Dina Scirpo, the College Community of students, faculty, staff, administrators, priory, monastery, and the girls' families attended a prayer vigil, funeral Mass, and memorial service.

The accident left many of the Community in a somber mood all week. Surviving

Saint Leo Mourns the Loss of Two Fine Students

By Derick Headley

In the early morning of Sunday, January 22, three Saint Leo students were involved in a fatal car accident. Christine Anderson, 19, Melody Closs, 22, and Dina Scirpo, 18, were returning from Tampa when, near the junction of I-75 and I-275, another vehicle drove across the median and crashed into Anderson's 1987 Honda.

Floyd B. Kinderknecht, driver of the 1977 Dodge from Zephyrhills, and his two passengers, ages 4 and 10, were not seriously injured in the wreck. According to police records, Kinderknecht did not pass sobriety tests.

Unfortunately, the students were not so lucky. Closs, a senior majoring in dance and theater, died at the scene of the accident. Anderson, a sophomore majoring in music and theater, died 40 hours later at Saint Joseph's Hospital in Tampa. Scirpo, a freshman, was taken to Tampa General Hospital, but later released. The Florida Highway Patrol are investigating the 2:30 a.m. accident.

Christine Anderson are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Anderson Jr., and two brothers, Michael Edward and Joseph Stephen, from Falls Church, Virginia. Surviving Melody Sanders Closs are her husband, Duane; son, Alexander; parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sanders; and paternal and maternal grandmothers. Surviving both students are the Phi Mu Sorority Sisters, and the many College Community members that each knew.

On Thursday, January 26, at 7:30 p.m. a Prayer Vigil for Christine Anderson was held in the Abbey Church. Friends and family filled the church to hear the many testimonies by her close friends, her parents and brother. Reverend Rick Hugli, O.S.B., presided at the service. A funeral Mass was also held in the Abbey Church on Friday, January 27, at 10:00 a.m. Most classes were cancelled for the funeral. Reverend Mike O'Brien, former director of Campus Ministry, con-celebrated the Mass with Fr. Rick Hugli, assistant director of Campus Ministry, and Msgr. Frank M. Mouch, president of Saint Leo. Mrs. Anderson addressed those present about her daughter and gave a poignant talk on drinking and driving. The point of her message was for each person to choose to make a difference. Choose not to drink and drive.

On Saturday, January 28, at 2:00 p.m. a Memorial Service for Melody Sanders Closs was held in the McDonald Center. Many from the College Community and Melody's family members joined together to remember her with a memorial table of pictures depicting Melody's dance through life and testimonies by her cousin, Beth Dwyer, professor Dennis Henry, Phi Mu sister Cheryl Asmussen, and a piano solo by Mike Fagnoli of Friends, by Michael W. Smith. Sister Candice Tucci, O.S.F., director of Campus Ministry, Fr. Rick Hugli, and Msgr. Mouch presided at the service.

In lieu of flowers, both families have established scholarship and trust funds. The Student Affairs Office will forward contributions to the proper funds. The Anderson family requested that donations be made to "The Saint Leo College Scholarship Fund" in memory of Christine Anderson. The Closs and Sanders families requested that donations be made for Melody's five-month-old baby boy, to "The Alexander Closs Trust Fund."

International Perspectives: The Incredible Shrinking Earth

By Kip Kelly

If you had the desire, you could be in just about any country in Europe within 10 hours. A hundred years ago that same journey, if you accomplished it successfully, would have taken weeks or even months. So, the not-so-old adage is true that the world grows smaller all the time. And, as technology advances, the world will continue to shrink.

Economically, the world is also beginning to diminish in size. The European community is binding itself into an organization, the European Union, which focuses, primarily, on economic issues.

This economic phenomenon is not only limited to Europe. The United States has ratified the North American Free Trade Agreement, aimed at reducing the economic barriers in place on our continent.

Another well-publicized trade accord is the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT). The main object of the GATT is the reduction of obstacles to trade in manufactured goods, specifically the reduction of tariffs. This association was a spinoff from the failed 1948 attempt to create the International Trade Organization and currently includes over 100 members. GATT addresses long-term issues, and policy is created by an extremely slow process.

Politically, the United Nations includes a broad range of objectives.

The chief issue addressed by the charter is the maintenance of peace and security. Other concerns involve friendly relations among nations, achieving cooperation to solve international problems of an economic, social, cultural or humanitarian character, and harmonization of the action of members to attain these goals. The ultimate objective to this broad cooperation is the avoidance of war.

A part of this whole process is the mingling of cultures. The mass media instantaneously sends news and data across the world. Soon, an American will be able to telephone friends, relatives, or business contacts in North Korea. Currently, every other nation is accessible to our country by telephone.

Japan, a historically prolific borrower from other cultures, is an example of a nation that has done well economically by integrating the best of the East and the West. Their dramatic transformation from the ashes of World War II to an economic power of today is the result of this synthesis.

The question that arises then, is; what is the role of the United States in this emerging global culture? Do we have a moral obligation, as the single superpower, to aid other states in their search for political constancy and economic prosperity, or should we tend only to our own domestic problems and assert our power only when our own security is at risk?

A philosophy is emerging in the U.S. that calls for the establishment of a new moral climate and the return to the America of some vague nostalgic past. This movement is labeled Communitarianism. Republican Jack Kemp and Vice President-elect Al Gore are said to be enthusiasts of this new program. In his acceptance speech, President Clinton appealed for a new moral order with a "new spirit of community."

While there is a great deal of initial appeal for the concepts that the Communitarians espouse, such as their principle of "children first" in the event of divorce, much of their platform speaks in generalities that lack substantive answers to the problems that they address. Also, there exists the possibility that the Communitarians might be too energetic in their pursuit of community values, as this statement from their platform might suggest; "Those who neglect these duties should be explicitly considered poor members of the community." This statement is directed at those who do not follow the values of the community - not law-breakers.

Regardless, will Americans, with a historical cycle of isolationism, embrace this new doctrine and the isolationism that may accompany it? As the world becomes more economically and politically intertwined, will the U.S. society withdraw into small communities? Will we ignore the interdependence of the Mexican and American economy and refuse to back the loans necessary to the revitalization of the Mexican economy, and thus to our own economic well-being?

Surely, there is a necessity for dialogue regarding the state of the American community, however, it is far too premature to abandon the concepts upon which our society was founded. More importantly, as the world continues to shrink, we must maintain an active role in the global community if we are to preserve a viable economy.

Resolve to be Involved

By Monica Kingsley

Once again we embark on a new year, 1995. An old custom of a new year is to make resolutions. The most common resolutions are to lose weight and to quit smoking.

I, however, would like to challenge and perhaps influence some of our resolutions. If you haven't made a resolution, it is never too late. If you have, is it realistic or obtainable? Resolutions are best when they involve small, practical goals. For example, it is possible to resolve to lose 20 pounds if you stay focused and have short goals of one pound a week.

My suggestion for realistic, obtainable resolutions concerns involvement. We join here at Saint Leo for various reasons whatever they may be. This unity should bring us together as a family. The problem I see is that we are lacking Community on this Campus. Involvement in activities, clubs and organizations is meager. There are only a few in our midst that work hard to pull everyone together.

My wish for this New Year and this semester is for everyone to become more actively involved in Campus life. I'm addressing both students as well as faculty. I have attended meetings where few members are present and the faculty advisor is absent. It is my philosophy that if we are going to commit to involvement, then we should do just that, get involved.

The resolution that I propose is for each and everyone of us to become actively involved in at least one activity.

Merely becoming a member of a group is not sufficient. The groups on Campus need help with fundraisers, organized events, and planning committees. Being involved means more than paying dues. For instance, we are all members of the Student Leadership Coalition (SLC). A percentage of our tuition goes to SLC for activities and events. Our money pays for these services, yet few attend. This is like going to a store and giving them money, but taking no merchandise.

Involvement in Campus life enhances the complete college experience. College is about more than books, classes, and exams. It may seem this way occasionally, but this is why activities are so important. They give us some time out from our studies and create fellowships and friendships.

Once we complete our degrees and move on to the working world, we will have opportunities to join professional organizations and serve as board members of various groups. Involvement now in Campus activities will prepare us for positions we may hold later in life.

Involvement now will only serve to prepare us for our futures. I challenge us all to become involved and in doing so to encourage those around us to do likewise.

Happy New Year!

Ex Mia Sentia

by Fred B. Ramlow

Spending! One word that means so much in America today. Everyone spends the bucks, and sometimes flounders in debt. Even my wife and I found ourselves deep in debt about six years ago, and had to budget our money. It has taken plenty of time, but our debt is almost gone. So, you think that this problem of spending and debt doesn't have anything to do with you? Wrong! Our government is doing the same thing that my wife and I did in the past. Spending too much, and getting too deep in debt. This effects everyone with either higher taxes or cuts in services.

While overspending is not anything new for our government, we finally seem to have the chance to change things. The new Republican Congress is pushing through a Balanced Budget Amendment. Perhaps our government will learn fiscal responsibility, and strike a balance between taxes and services. Much like a person, the government has to learn to live within a certain income and sacrifice some extras.

Many people say that this Balanced Budget Amendment is a joke, and that it will do nothing to balance the budget. I disagree. The amendment in itself may not balance the budget, but it is an important first step in the process. Witness that it is mostly the Democrats that are complaining about the proposed amendment. These same Democrats controlled the U.S. House of Represententatives like a feudal kingdom for forty years. The House is the body of our government that controls spending. So, maybe you can see why my eyes glaze over when a Democrat starts to speak about government spending.

But, I guess I'm getting off the point. Back to spending. One thing I have noticed recently is that all of the many hundreds of people who benefit from all of this special spending are crawling out of the woodwork to protect their interests, and claim that their government spending is vital to the nation.

I would suggest a little skepticism is in order. Yes, many of these programs do accomplish some good. I have been watching and enjoying PBS programs for years. But, our government, like my wife and I six years ago, can no longer afford all that we like or enjoy. Something has to be sacrificed. Extras, like PBS, need to be eliminated so our government can focus on the really important services.

What are these really important services? I have my opinions, and I'm sure you do, too. So, maybe we should write our Congressmen and tell them what we think is important. But, I'll make a deal with you. I will keep my list of what's important to me short. Why? Because spending is the problem, and the object is to spend less. Remember that, and maybe in time we will not have to worry about a national debt.

Training Positions Open on Monarch Staff

We need your help! Ask yourself, Can I write? Can I edit? Can I do computer layout? Do I want to learn any of these activities? If you answered yes to any of these questions, then we need you as soon as possible.

The staff of the Monarch is trying something new this year. We are offering free training for our positions in order to set up a staff for next year.

Each paid staff member has been asked to find his or her replacement for next year. Why such a drastic measure? It's because four out of the five of us are seniors, and will not be back next year. Our Sports Editor is the only non-senior we have on paid-staff.

Notice that I said paid-staff? Yes, we get the opportunity to put into the newspaper whatever (within reason) we want to write, and we get paid for it. It equals out to a part-time job, and it looks good on the resume. Are you thinking about a part-time job for next year? During your thinking, why don't you think about joining the Monarch.

In fact, why don't you ask one of the paid Monarch staff members about it or place a note in the Monarch mailbox or on the Monarch Office door in Saint Edward Hall.

Remember: free training for paid-staff positions. So, don't wait until next year. Talk to one of us now.

And, by the way, did I mention that we have paid-staff positions? Come talk to us as soon as possible.

Butt-out

By Bobbi Sponheim

Smoking can delay the healing of bones--- up to five months longer for serious fractures and less for minor breaks, says many orthopedic surgeons. Nicotine and other substances in cigarette smoke reduce the amount of oxygen reaching bone tissue causing the delay in healing. So, if you're a smoker, expect a longer-than-average healing time.

Poisoning your own soul

By Dr. Walter Poznar

Confucius once said: "Make conscientiousness and sincerity your grand object. Have no friends not equal to yourself. If you have done wrong, be not ashamed to make amends." This emphasis on sincerity is one way of determining that nothing will ever stop you from being true to what you feel or think.

We live in a society obsessed with cleverness, cunning, and outwitting others. Yet this is nothing more than betraying who you really are for the sake of some immediate advantage. Every time you are false to yourself, you are saying in effect that you do not trust your own thoughts and feelings. You poison what is best in your own soul.

By being false to yourself, you lose any chance of ever having a real friend, of ever being able to love another human being, of ever allowing someone else to love you, the real you. You come in time to fear the real you, become ashamed of who you are, and learn how to protect yourself against others. And in the process you become a nothing, a non-person, a frightened, insecure caricature of a real human being. Is it worth it?

On Wednesday, March 1, 1995, from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., Saint Leo will host its 12th Annual Health Fair. The Fair will be held in the Raleigh Greene Room and is open to the public as well as the students, faculty and staff of Saint Leo College.

The Saint Leo College Christmas formal was held in the McDonald Center on December 3rd. Organizers of this event did a fabulous job decorating to create a festive atmosphere.

Entertainment was provided by a disc jockey. He played a variety of favorite hits from the '70's, country, alternative and Top 40.

Many students took the opportunity to dress up and take their minds off of the approaching finals.

The formal was held from nine to one and a last minute decision was made to waive the admittance fee. This increased the numbers who attended.

Internships

The FBI is currently recruiting for their summer Honors Internship Program. This program offers about 75 students the chance to examine a future with the organization. This is a paid position that will run from the months of June through August in Washington, D.C. It is offered to students with a variety of majors.

For the Health Care Administration major, 1st Dental Care, a local business, is searching for the right candidates for their internship program. While the first thirty days will be unpaid, there is opportunity to move into a paid position. Qualified St. Leo students that want to stay in the area should check this opening out because the contact person is a 1992 St. Leo graduate.

The Franklin Life Insurance Company is offering a paid internship. Primarily geared to the Marketing student, it is available for both juniors and seniors.

The Tampa Sports Authority is seeking applicants for its spring internship program. Interviews will be held in October and the internship will start in early January. This is a partially-paid position.

The Institute for Experiential Learning finds internships for many interests. All these internships will be held in Washington, D.C.

The Scholarship Guide for Hispanics lists numerous scholarship opportunities.

The University of Florida offers fellowships and other possibilities in their Graduate Minority Programs.

Saint Leo Women's Basketball Team Shocks the University of Tampa

By Derick Headley

The Lady Monarchs pulled off a win that surprised everyone except for themselves. Saint Leo faced the number seven nationally-ranked team in Division II women's basketball on their homecourt.

The Lady Monarchs played their best basketball of the season, defeating the University of Tampa's Lady Spartans 64-59 on the superb play of Forward Monica Lewis and Guard Latasha Johnson. Yet, it took total team effort to pull off the Lady Monarch's biggest win of the season.

The game setting was also one of the most intense in women's basketball. One of the Lady Monarchs talked about how the Spartans were doing a little trash talking while Saint Leo was at the foul line. But, this feeble attempt to shake up Saint Leo's game plan didn't work, and the Lady Spartans went home in tears that night, hopefully dreading the day that they must face our Lady Monarchs here at home. If the Lady Monarchs continue their good play, I wouldn't be surprised to see them in the SSC finals.

Saint Leo was behind only once in the game, which was during the first two minutes. After that Saint Leo had the Spartans chasing all the way, only coming to within three points at half time.

In the second half, Saint Leo never let down and kept their focus, only letting the Spartans get within two points of tying the score. Crystal Dobbs hit a crucial three pointer to keep an attempted drive by the Spartans from coming together. Monica Lewis then hit another three pointer that pretty much put the game away. This was then followed up by crucial foul shots made by Latasha Johnson. Monica and Latasha combined for 40 of the 64 points scored by the Lady Monarchs this game. As of this game the Lady Monarchs were 7-6, and were 3-1 in the SSC.

Saint Leo's Will Wilson Runs in Disney Marathon

By Derick Headley

On the weekend of January 7th one of Saint Leo's staff members competed in the Disney Marathon held at the Disney World Theme Park in Orlando. Will Wilson, a recruiter in the Admissions Office, was chosen to run with twelve thousand other participants in the 26.2 mile Marathon beginning at Walt Disney World, and running through Epcot Center and Disney MGM Theme Park. Will finished the race as the 310th runner to cross the line with a time of three hours and five minutes. This is some feat, considering that this was Will's second run longer than fifteen miles.

Will Wilson started running when he was a junior in high school in Tiffin, Ohio. When he started, he felt that he should be running on the Varsity team, but his coach placed him on the Junior Varsity instead. In Will's first run, which was a five kilometer race, will finished third out of five hundred runners. After this, Will's coach placed him on the Varsity team.

During Will's senior year of high school he was the top runner in his school, and he was also in the top twenty runners in the state of Ohio. Will quit running when he went to college, because of the "college environment". But, Will says that he is a warm-weather runner, so when he moved down to Florida, he began running again on and off. Will's first competitive run after starting again was the Jingle Bell Run in Saint Petersburg, a three mile run in which he placed sixth.

Will is currently training to run in the Boston Marathon later this year. Just in case you wish to run with Will one time, consider that in an average week, he will run about fifty miles.

Saint Leo Loses Heartbreaker to University of Tampa

By Derick Headley

On January 11 the Saint Leo men's basketball team played the toughest team in the SSC; the University of Tampa's Spartans.

In probably the most emotionally-charging game of the season, Saint Leo lost 78-74 at home in front of their very supportive fans. With the University of Tampa being ranked 9th nationally in Division two basketball, many expected the Monarchs to be blown out, which it looked like at the end of the first half with Saint Leo down by thirteen. But, in the second half Saint Leo pulled to within one and looked like they were going to upset the top team in their conference.

In the beginning of the first half, University of Tampa got a quick start, jumping out to a 22-8 lead. The Monarchs then adjusted to the style of the Spartans and cut the score down to 50-37 at half time on a three point shot from guard Alex Mack. In the second half, the Monarchs played with reckless abandon, and their defense put the Spartans in a scoring drought, only allowing them to score four points in the first seven minutes of the second half. Point Guard Fred Trammell played one of his best games here at Saint Leo, getting good scoring lay-ups and key steals. Forward Shawn Jannette cut the lead to one on a slam dunk that had the entire Saint Leo crowd screaming in the stands.

On the next series, Saint Leo fouled and Tampa hit one of two free throws making the score 76-74 with fifty-six seconds to go. Saint Leo went for the win, trying to hit a three-pointer, but the Spartans partially blocked the shot and got the ball back. While driving back down court, it appeared that the Spartans hit the ball out of bounds. When the referee gave the ball back to the Spartans, the Saint Leo crowd broke into a frenzy of boo's and a ball of paper almost hit the side referee. Also, one of Saint Leo's esteemed cafeteria staff almost got thrown out of the game because of an altercation with the side referee.

When the crowd calmed, down the Monarchs ended up fouling the University of Tampa to stop the clock. Tampa hit both free throws and put the game away. After this game the Monarchs record was 7-7, and 1-1 in the SSC.
