SCOAR educates college community

By David J. Preller
Special to the Monarch

Think of six women closest to you.... Now guess which one will be raped this year! If this statistic shocks you, it should. It is a horrific reminder that one in six college women will be sexually assaulted this year, and studies have documented that these women are more likely to be raped by someone they know than by a stranger. Research also indicates that as many as one third of college women have already been victims of forced or unwanted sex. Something needs to be done, and the time is now!

Over the past year, the Student

Life Committee has been reviewing the realities and issues that surround date/acquaintance rape, and how it affects the Saint Leo campus community. Through the use of surveys, student input and recent occurrences on campus the Committee has established that the student body expresses concern about the prevalence of acquaintance rape, and the ill-formed college community which falls victim to it. It is clear that we, as a community, must educate ourselves in order to prevent its occurrence in the future.

As a result, the Student Life Committee has created a Student Committee on Acquaintance Rape

(S.C.O.A.R.). The sole purpose of SCOAR will be to educate the college community about how acquaintance rape can be prevented. The name SCOAR was chosen so it can be pointed out to students the dynamics of dating and separate "scoring" from safe, informative relationships.

The students that would make up SCOAR would play an active role in increasing student awareness and, hopefully, decreasing victimization by being trained to provide workshops and presentations in order to network the wide spectrum of organizations and student groups on campus. It will also develop an active educational campaign aimed at the college community. These activities would include conducting a "Rape Awareness Week," creating displays on acquaintance rape prevention and supplying literature needed to inform.

It is crucial that the Saint Leo student body makes a difference to help itself, but it is only possible with your participation. SCOAR is open to males and females. If you are interested in SCOAR, applications will be available in the Student Activities office in Saint Edward Hall. If you have any questions please do not hesitate to contact David Preller at 567-7067 or 588-8844.

Admissions targets South American students

By Joel Murray
Monarch Staff Writer

With recruiting for the next year well underway, Bonnie Black, Director of Admissions, has been placing special emphasis on attracting South American students.

Jose Fernandez, a counselor who is fluent in Spanish, will be traveling with seven counselors from other colleges to Central and South America from March 21st to April 4th, to visit various high schools and promote Saint Leo. Students in those areas tend to be drawn to warm climates, such as California, Texas, and Florida.

Students who score between the high 400's and 550 on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL), will be entered in the English as a Second Language (ESL) Program. This program was formulated at Saint Michael's College in Vermont, where it has met with outstanding success.

Students in the ESL program begin in an ENG 120 or 121 class. They will also be enrolled in a content course, such as

"I'm really excited about it. One of the neatest things about Saint Leo College is the variety of nationalities represented."

philosophy, biology, or economy. After their class, they will meet with a teacher and be able to ask questions and discuss topics which may be causing confusion for them. They also will be enrolled in their own College 101 class. In the following semester the students will have more independence, although a support group will still be available for them.

Dr. Mark Edmonds, who will be working with the program, said, "I'm really excited about it. One of the neatest things about Saint Leo College is the variety of nationalities represented."

Peterson scholarship offered

By Glenn Ladwig
Monarch Staff Writer

A fund raising auction was held December 18 at the Saint Leo - Georgetown basketball game in Washington, D.C. Bob Peterson Jr. coordinated the event that raised approximately $6,000 for the Robert H. Peterson Scholarship fund.

Some of the items in the auction program were: an autographed photo of Dan Marino, a basketball autographed by Michael Jordan, Washington Redskins tee-shirts and jackets, rare tickets to the first Redskins playoffs and various forms of fine art.

The fund is an endowed scholarship in which the money contributed is invested through an investment firm. Upon reaching the sum of $10,000, as the Peterson fund has, the interest from the fund is used each year for scholarships. As the amount of the endowment increases, the available scholarship monies increase.

Dr. Peterson worked at Saint Leo College for 24 years. Two years after joining the faculty in 1968, he was promoted from chairman of the Division of Science and Mathematics to vice president for academic affairs. He remained vice president until 1976, when he returned to the division chairmanship. He retired in June, 1991. Dr. Peterson passed away two months later.

Dr. Peterson saw to it that every one of his eight children went on to an institution of higher education. Through the scholarship fund, Bob Peterson Jr. is seeing to it that other deserving students will have the opportunity to receive an education at an institution of higher learning. The parameters of the scholarship are still being decided.

Father Marion Bowman is planting a tree given to him during Night of 1000 Stars for his lifelong commitment to Saint Leo College.

It couldn't be worse, could it?

By Theodor Fontane
Special to the Monarch

It's a fact that a human being must eat and drink to survive. But since I had to eat here at Saint Leo the last semester, I realized that it also depends on where you eat and drink.

It might be that I'm just spoiled with European-style food, because we have a completely different gastronomic culture as compared to the Americans, who prefer to eat hamburgers with fries and cheese out of spray cans. But still, what we have to eat here every day at the "Mc-Donald Cafeteria" is the very highest of impudence beyond any dignity and way out of proportion regarding the money we had to pay for the meal plan. Paul Bocure would turn in his grave if he knew about this.

The trays are always wet, the forks and knives are dirty, the cups and glasses stink and the food (no matter what kind) always comes with a tasteless, slimy sauce and is overcooked and never seasoned. The steak and chicken seem to be second choice meat and everything is served through that strange-smelling, foggy cloud which comes from behind the counter. It's like a veil so you can't see where the food comes from.

On top of everything else is the rude staff behind the counter. They always complain if you try to put more than one plate on your dirty tray, even though there is enough space for plenty more. I guess this must be some kind of a "golden Marriott rule" that provides only one plate at a time. For the second plate you have to go back and wait in line again.... Makes no sense to me!

Now it is quite obvious to me why there are four pizza restaurants around the school. They sell more than 50 percent of all their pizzas to Saint Leo College. Without the school they wouldn't exist anymore. And it is also obvious why so many people keep food in their rooms. I have seen rooms with more microwavable food and cans than most people keep in their nuclear blast-proof bunkers. Why? Because any little fast food restaurant at any highway exit is a thousand times better than this horrible Marriott stuff we have to choke on day after day.

I wonder how long this will go on? I wonder how long the school can survive if they keep on serving this food (what's a school without students)? I wonder how long it will take before Marriott finds out what people think about their name after they become sick from the food Marriott produces? I wonder if anyone from this school will ever eat or stay at a Marriott hotel after graduating from Saint Leo?

One acts deal with the holocaust

By Renee Lacerenza
Copy Editor

The Saint Leo College Theatre presented two one-act plays dealing with the Jewish point of view of the Holocaust. The student-directed plays were performed in the College theatre February 19-23.

Senior theatre major David Gilpin of Pinellas Park, FL is directing the one-acts as part of his Senior Honors Project.

"It's rare that we allow a student to direct a production," Theatre Director Dennis Henry stated. "We allowed David to because he's extremely capable and talented."

"Dr. Korczak and the Children," by Erwin Sylvanus a play about a Jewish man who supposedly never told a lie, is based on a true story. It centers around his having to take his 66 children to the gas chambers at Maidanek.

"Replika," by Jozef Szagina is a re-creation of the Holocaust. "Replika," in Gilpin's own words, "is like a history lesson." His interest in these two one-act plays stems from the combination of his senior honors project and the fact that the theatre was going to put on "Dr. Korczak and the Children" last year, but never did so.

Both productions will feature SLC students Daniel Eckert, a senior art major from New Port Richey, FL; Allison Gonor, a sophomore dance major from Linden, NJ; Sheila Holland, a junior accounting major from Miami, FL; Lisa McColgan, a senior theatre major from Hingham, MA; Ami Sallee, a freshman theatre/secondary education double major from Englewood, FL; Melody Sanders, a freshman dance/theatre double major from Jacksonville, FL; Ginger Sheehy, a sophomore hotel/restaurant management major from Brandywine, MD; Jessica Simmons, a freshman theatre major from Brooksville, FL; Brian Swann, a San Antonio resident and Rebecca Totyke, a freshman hotel/restaurant management major from Orlando, FL. Michelle Cain, a senior theatre major from Cincinnati, OH was stage manager and assistant director to Gilpin.

MENC brings music to SLC

Special to the Monarch

A new student organization called the Music Educators National Conference (MENC). The club is open to all students interested in becoming a music major or minor, or who support music education in the school system. MENC will keep you up-to-date on any new developments in the field of music and music education and have various guest speakers throughout the semester.

The fee for admittance is $13. This fee signs you up for the Music Educator's Journal, a monthly magazine which tells about various teaching strategies to use in music, or in other fields of education, and various musical techniques and forms that are helpful to studying musicians, such as improvisation.

The acting officers are: Kevin Rivard, president; John Ashfield, vice president; Christopher Mills, secretary-treasurer; and Mr. John Higgins, sponsor.

Meetings will normally be held at 5:30 p.m. on Mondays, following Men's Chorus. For more information contact John Higgins at 588-8298 or Christopher Mills at 567-9134.

Internship program becomes successful

By Michelle G. Berens
Editor

Begun three years ago with an agreement between the Division of Humanities and the St. Petersburg Times, the Saint Leo College internship program has now grown to include six students at several locations. It was a project initiated by Kurt Van Wilt, director of the SLC Writing Center, who says it has "become more successful than I ever imagined."

Students are participating in three areas:

Shannon Corcoran, senior English major and theatre minor at Radio Station WBVM; Nicole Gant, senior English major at Channel 13 at Eye Witness News; Renee Lacerenza, senior English major at SLC Office of Public Affairs; Charlotte Nielan, junior English/secondary education major at The Tampa Bay Business Journal; T.J. Stankus, junior English major at SLC Office of Public Affairs; Charlene Vogt, senior English major at SLC Office of Public Affairs.

There are two internship courses—ENG 300 and ENG 400. The principle purpose of each course is to involve students in the actual process of writing, publishing and producing by allowing them to work for and with professional writers, editors and producers.

In ENG 300, activities will focus on newspaper or magazine investigation, research, writing, editing, layout, advertising and design as these are carried out in a newspaper or magazine office. In ENG 400, interns move on to programming, engineering, producing, scheduling and on-air producing as these are carried out in a newspaper or magazine office or in a radio or television station. Each student spends a specific amount of time each week doing the following:

- (1) assisting in week-to-week research projects (this includes considerable interviewing, especially via the telephone), careful fact gathering and careful fact checking
- (2) reporting and writing special feature stories
- (3) daily copy editing and layout chores
- (4) gathering information and writing stories
- (5) compiling and filing news clips from clipping services
- (6) learning to communicate with people in the media on a one-to-one basis, and may accompany staff members to radio and television stations
- (7) assisting in programming, engineering and production assignments
- (8) assisting with or participating in on-air presentations and

Person of the Week

By Renee Lacerenza
Copy Editor

Ralph Pendexter, director of foreign language studies at Saint Leo College, addressed the topic of "Berlin: A Metropolis on the Move" on campus in Lewis Hall Thursday, February 13, at 7 p.m. He discussed the political and cultural progress of the German city, tracing from the post World War II era to today.

At the end of World War II, according to Pendexter's source, a German newsletter, "das Zeitbild," Germany was divided up into four occupational zones and later was divided up again, into two political units called the Federal Republic of Germany (BRD) and the German Democratic Republic (DDR). The Capital of Berlin was accessible to both the East and West and remained the center of the Allied Military Authority.

In 1961, when the Wall was built, separation between the two republics seemed permanent, but in November of 1989 (when the borders opened up) real political progress began. Voting and election objections diminished and negotiations took place. Things began changing.

Pendexter addressed events beginning with December 1990's election, when leader Eberhard Diepgen noted that equal emphasis needed to be placed on the political responsibilities of the major city and a pleasant living environment. In view of this idea, renovation work throughout the city on transportation, apartment buildings, stores and the like would have to take place to accommodate the increasing population.

Technological advancement has increased to dizzy heights and, heretofore, is offering workers the chance to penetrate East European markets.

According to Pendexter's source, Berlin seems to capture the historical and cultural environment of yesterday and create the stimulating and competitive environment of today.

SLC commended for pilot program

By Michelle G. Berens
Editor

On December 23, 1991, Education Commissioner Betty Castor extended a special letter of commendation to Saint Leo College President Monsignor Frank Mouch for his role in establishing a 2 + 2 agreement with Central Florida Community College (CFCC) located in Ocala.

Castor's letter states, "It is a pleasure to extend my appreciation and congratulations regarding the four-year program in elementary education you have established with Central Florida Community College. Providing access to degrees in elementary education to those who can't afford the traditionally more expensive path is highly commendable. You will have made it possible for many individuals to gain entry into a rewarding profession and Florida will be gaining a cadre of much needed elementary teachers. Please extend my gratitude to all involved in this exciting program which could become a model throughout the state..."

The model referred to by Commissioner Castor is an arrangement allowing students in the Ocala area to begin their college education at the community college in order to satisfy the first two years of their degree. They then move directly into their junior and senior years of course work at the Saint Leo extension operating on the community college's main campus in Ocala.

Use of this model provides students, especially non-traditional students, the opportunity to secure a four-year degree at a location where previously only a two-year degree was available.

In January 1991, a pilot program was initiated at the Lecanto campus of CFCC. CFCC provided all the publicity, the classroom space and office space for Saint Leo students and faculty. Saint Leo provided the faculty and academic support services such as academic advisors, library access and registration processing. According to Dean David Koval of Saint Leo's Continuing Education office, "The pilot program was a tremendous success. The CFCC/SLC partnership worked from the start; everyone involved was dedicated to making this partnership work for the students. Our institutional goals and the students' goals were both satisfied."

Because of the overwhelming success of the pilot program at the Lecanto campus, the program was expanded to the community college's main campus in Ocala in January 1992. The Marion County Commission, The Board of Education and the Board of Trustees of CFCC all welcomed Saint Leo to the Ocala community with a formal resolution showing their support.

Williams, Woodard debate

By Joel Murray
Monarch Staff

The second Honors Lecture Series took place on Thursday, February 6, in Duncan Lounge. Dr. James Woodard and Dr. Ernie Williams squared off on the subject of human nature. Also discussed were free will and existentialism, with much discussion on Jean-Paul Sartre's philosophy. While few concrete conclusions were drawn, light was shed on many of the ideas that make up Western thought. The audience participated with questions for both lecturers, creating a loose, informal atmosphere throughout the "debate."

Sunshine State Conference begins

By Michelle G. Berens
Editor

The Sunshine State Conference Tournament for men's and women's basketball will be held during March 1992.

The seven varsity teams from the schools in the conference league will be competing: Barry University, Eckerd College, Florida Southern, Florida Tech., Rollins College, Saint Leo College and University of Tampa.

Each tournament — men's and women's — will be played at the site of the first ranked team in each category, said Women's Basketball Coach John Swart. The top team, as determined by the team's record in conference play during the regular season, does not participate in the first round of the tournament. The other six teams compete in the first round:

the seventh ranked team will play the second ranked team; the sixth ranked team will play the third ranked team; and the fifth ranked team will play the fourth ranked team. The three winning teams in the first round and the top ranked team will participate in the second round playing two games, added Swart, with two squads reaching the final round of play. That game will determine the victor.

The winner of the men's tournament automatically qualifies for the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) tournament, announced Swart. "The women's league," he continued, "does not have that automatic qualification." To play in the NCAA tournament, the winner of the women's league would have to be invited the NCAA.

The men's basketball tournament will take place on March 5-7, Thursday-Saturday. The actual sites and nights of the women's tournament have not yet been finalized.

Intramural team in contest

Special To The Monarch

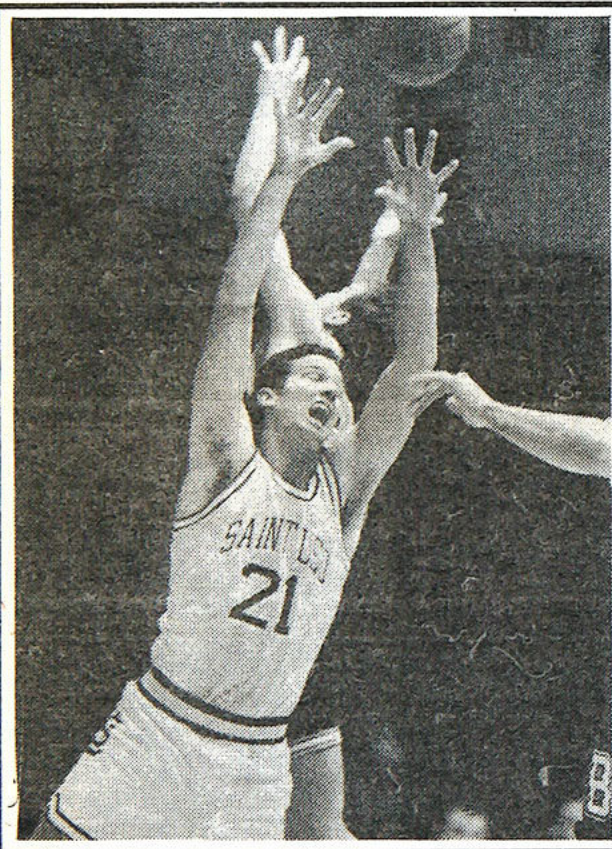

An intramural basketball team from Saint Leo College competed with 50 other area colleges and universities during the Schick Super Hoops Regional Tournament at the University of Central Florida, Orlando on Saturday, February 1, 1992.

The team included Sean Dettlinger, Vincent Hoffman, Scott Kelyman and Tom Lussiano.

They advanced to the intercollegiate tournament by winning the Schick Super Hoops Tournament recently at SLC.

The top two teams at the Regional Festival advanced to play the championship game at an NBA arena as part of an NBA game. Winning teams received a variety of prizes including K-Swiss basketball shoes, T-Shirts, sweatshirts, Schick Slim Twin Disposable Razors and plaques.

Schick Super Hoops, now in its ninth season, is the country's largest college recreational sports program in the country with more than 800 schools and 200,000 students. Regional tournaments are conducted in 22 regions across the country.

Robert Gandy (#21) fights for a rebound during last week's game with Barry University.
