Three college students arrested

By Michelle Berens
Editor

Three Saint Leo College students were arrested on March 22 and charged with trespassing on the property of the San Antonio City water tower located on Pennsylvania Avenue.

According to police files, a citizen's report of four white males were seen walking the catwalk around the tower.

The tower was completely enclosed by a locked four-foot high chain-linked fence topped by three layers of barb wire with a warning sign stating "Danger High Voltage" on the fence.

The subjects were arrested and taken to the county jail.

Should students names be released

By Michelle Berens
Editor

Several college students each year are arrested for one thing or another. A question that comes up is should their names be given to the student newspaper? If you are one of the arrested, of course you'd think not. If you've never been arrested then maybe you wouldn't care about information on students who are involved in crimes being released. But then again, maybe you would. Your friends names may be at stake. What if one day you're arrested?

Isn't it wise to let students know who's dangerous? Headline: "Young, White Male (No, I'm not being biased), Holds Up Majik Market." Who was it? Could it be your roommate? These are questions you must ask yourself.

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA), also known as the Buckley Amendment, is used by colleges to prohibit the releasing of information called the students' education records. Even college personnel won't release criminal records. There are the local and country news papers find out about the arrests take place and write about incidents. Also, students know about the arrest and are willing to give information. Besides, the public has access to arrest records.

It's a journalists job to get any and every kind of new information that occurs. Even we (the reporters) are informed of the events that need to be called to the public's attention.

Letter to the Editor

This letter is in response to an article entitled "CCE Move Decision Is Unfair" which appeared in the April 4, 1991 edition of The Monarch.

As I mentioned to you on several occasions I think you and your staff are doing an outstanding job. I think The Monarch is an excellent medium in which students are able to express their views and communicate with the college community.

I found the article on the CCE provided somewhat of a distorted view when the use of the classrooms (SF 24) adjacent to CCE not being used. In fact, this is not a true statement.

Based on the maximum utilization of 13 classes that could be scheduled in that room during a term, the actual percent of usage during Term 1/90 was 53%; Term 9/90 it was 69%, and for the current Term, 1/91, it is 53.

It is not clear who authored this article; however, I felt obligated to set the record straight. The room is not and has not been used.

In closing, the statement that students were not represented by the committee making the decisions on the proposed move is valid. The question that comes to mind is, "What steps have been taken by the students or the student Government Association to seek representation on the Space Management Committee?" To date, as a member of that committee I have not seen such a request.

Keep up the good work. I feel that the Monarch is a valuable asset to the College.

College Union Board holds annual CUB day

By Thomas Turotte
News Editor

The College Union Board's annual CUB Day was held on Saturday, April 13th. CUB Day is the organization's largest and most heavily attended annual entertainment event. Every year, CUB Day centers on a particular theme and this year's theme was "Beach Party." Previous CUB Days have included themes such as a circus and a college centennial. There was a variety of activities: free food, free music, and even a flea market.

The activities included two tournaments, as well. One was of a miniature golf competition and the other was of an Airball tournament (Airball is volleyball played on a large air mattress) and the tournament was won by Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity.

There was also a dunking booth which contained a range of volunteers throughout the day. Volunteers included Frank Hudson, Frankie Minor, director of residential life, and Alan Merson, associate professor of social work.

The music was D.J.ed by Saint Leo Student, Christian De Lise. In order to enhance the beach theme, the office of Institutional Advancement donated 500 beach balls, sunglasses, and frisbees.

The event was located near the pool this year, in an attempt to increase the attendance. According to CUB's executive board this location did enhance participation.

The consumption of the free food was a clear indicator of the amount of student's present. There were approximately 1,000 cups of Coke and 400 soft pretzels devoured by the students.

Greek update

Phi Kappa Sigma news

By Oliver Grant Dybing
Special to the Monarch

Welcome to the first ever Phi Kappa Sigma corner. We will try to keep you informed of our activities and community service projects. This year we initiated eight pledges into to Phi Kap; Oliver Dybing, Mike Blankenheim, Dan Frasure, Ed Bogacki, and most recently Liam O'Connell, Pete Fascilla, Dave Culberson, and Neal Ferrara. We now consist of twenty-four brothers. Unfortunately we are losing two brothers, Tony Carey and Paul Elliot, to graduation. Good luck to them both. We would also like to welcome our Phi Kap representative who is down this week. We hope he has an enjoyable time.

Sigma Phi Epsilon wins softball tournament

By Adam S. Albright
Special to the Monarch

Sigma Phi Epsilon lead by the powerful arm of Anthony "Chow" Michalski and pitching of Robert Gandy beat Sigma Alpha Epsilon 2 to 1 last weekend. Sigma Phi Epsilon lead the game until the sixth inning when Paul Devellis knocked in Matt Biety for the tying run. Sig Ep then held Sigma Alpha Epsilon for the rest of the game. TJ Stankus drove in the winning run in the bottom of the seventh inning. Sigma Phi Epsilon proved to be the best in softball this year going undefeated.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon wins greek week

By Adam S. Albright
Special to the Monarch

Sigma Alpha Epsilon won the Greek Week title this year. After a slow start Sigma Alpha Epsilon turned up the heat to pull ahead of Sigma Phi Epsilon during the final days of the week. Sigma Alpha Epsilon came in first in tennis, discus, bombardment, obstacle course, and the tug-of-war. Greek Week was full of tough competition and was a very big success.

Phi Kappa Sigma takes basketball title

By Adam S. Albright
Special to the Monarch

Phi Kappa Sigma defeated Tau Kappa Epsilon 65 to 53 on March 8. With the outside shot of Mike Blankheim and the inside play of Tom Lussiano, Phi Kappa Sigma lead the whole game. Tau kappa Epsilon, the defending champs, was led by Scott Caulfield and Vinney Gangi with the combined score of 23. Phi Kappa Sigma finished the season undefeated and Tau Kappa Epsilon finished the season with four wins and two losses both resulting from Phi Kappa Sigma. On behalf of IFC I would like to thank all of the referees that helped us out this season. Your help was greatly appreciated.

The senator awards were passed out earlier, in a senate meeting, in order to shorten the banquet.

The new S.G.A. executive board was inaugurated by William Quigley, president of Campus Court. The new executive board includes David Preller, Kevin Kennedy, Anna Molina, and Becky Buller.

Administrators, faculty and staff volunteered their time to act as servers for the dinner. Dr. Tyson Anderson, Frankie Minor, and Brian Chasteen were only a few of the many who volunteered their services to make the banquet a success.

Position opens for Education Planning Commission

The Appointment Office is now accepting applications from qualified students who wish to be considered for the student position on the Postsecondary Education Planning Commission for the coming year, beginning in September. I would appreciate your assistance in notifying the student body of your institution about this position.

The student member of the Postsecondary Education Planning Commission must be a registered full-time student at a postsecondary institution such as a vocational-technical center, community college, state university or at a nonpublic college, university or vocational school. The Postsecondary Education Planning Commission serves as an advisory body to the State Board of Education on all matters relating to postsecondary education.

Interested students should contact the Appointments Office of the Governor, The Capitol, Tallahassee, Florida, 32399-0001.

Applications, letters of recommendation and supporting materials should be received no later than July 15, 1991.

Private campuses may be faltering

(CPS)- Fewer high school seniors seem to be applying to enter private colleges next fall, while public colleges are enjoying the increased popularity, early reports from various campuses indicate.

The trend, if it proves true, could mean that private campuses have begun to price themselves too high, and that the declining number of 18-year-olds in the population is leaving private schools without enough students to recruit as freshmen, observers say.

"You can't get water out of a dry sponge," commented Frank Burtnett of the National Association of College Admission Counselors, based in Virginia.

Private schools, including Northeastern, De Pauw, Drexel and Villanova universities as well as Marist and Occidental colleges and the University of Hartford have reported receiving the same number of or fewer applications this year as they had gotten at the same time last year.

Meanwhile, public campuses such as the universities of Connecticut, Kentucky and Wyoming are seeing application increases of up to 16 percent this year.

"The cost of going to a private college is so ungodly that people are looking at public schools," speculated Kathy Fields, associate director of admissions at the University of Wyoming (UW).

However, not everyone is ready to conclude that, in general, private colleges ultimately will receive fewer applications this year.

"I can't make that generalization," said Burtnett, who added that so far, he had only anecdotal evidence, not any hard proof, that private campuses might suffer enrollment drops next fall.

In fact, private campuses like the University of Puget Sound, Emory, Clark Atlanta, Southern Methodist, Cornell, and Duke universities as well as Whittier and Reed colleges are reporting increases.

Nevertheless, many factors, including the demographic decline in the number of 18-year-olds in the U.S. and the recession, are depressing the number of applications at some campuses, Burtnett admitted.

"We simply cannot underestimate the impact of the continuing shift in student demographics," said Burtnett, who added that the number of high school seniors will continue to decline through the mid-1990's.

"Small, traditional, residential liberal arts colleges like ours end to draw students from the traditionally aged cohort, and that is the age which is declining," agreed Charlene Liebau, director of admissions at Occidental College in California.

"The (numbers of) seniors in our state are down. We felt like we hit the low mark last year," said UW's Fields.

The economy also is having an impact on the types and number of schools to which students apply, Burtnett said.

"The cost of tuition and the availability of financial aid is affecting more kids and with greater intensity," he explained. Tuition at four-year private colleges averaged $9,393 this year, the College Board reported last October.

By contrast, tuition averaged $1,809 at four-year public campuses and $884 at two-year public campuses this year.

Pro-choice movement waning

(CPS) - As individual state legislatures move to adopt measures to severely restrict women's ability to get abortions, students say the campus pro-choice movement is waning.

"We're having a hard enough time just maintaining membership now," admitted Michele Virva, a president of Students for Choice at Western Michigan University (WMU).

"It's hard to get people to do more than sign a petition," agreed Jean Gibbons, president of People for Choice at Smith College in Massachusetts.

The problems arise just as anti-abortion legislators in various states, taking advantage of the 1989 U.S. Supreme Court ruling that upheld a Missouri abortion restriction and allowed other states to adopt similar laws, have scored some major victories.

In January, the Utah legislature passed a measure described as the most restrictive anti-abortion law in the country.

The measure forbids abortions in most cases.

Now legislatures in Alabama, Missouri and Louisiana are debating adopting similar laws themselves.

"We face the clear possibility of losing the constitutional right to an abortion altogether," said Marlene Freed, director of the Civil Liberties and Public Policy Program at Hampshire College in Massachusetts.

Freed thinks the reason students are not protesting is that the action is in the states, not Washington, where it is easier to focus attention on an issue.

"The focus clearly is on states," Freed said.

"In Massachusetts right now there aren't any major fights" so it's hard to get students involved, said Smith's Gibbons.

Worried, Freed is sponsoring a program on abortion and other reproductive issues for students and community activities April 5 through 7.

She hopes students will use the conference to network and share ideas so the pro-choice movement can pick up momentum.

Pro-choice activities at Smith are lobbying Congress for support of the Freedom of Choice Act, which would codify into federal law the principles of Roe v. Wade, the law legalizing abortion, Gibbons said.

They are also working with other political groups at Smith to get funding from the students government, which will not give money to partisan political organizations.

"It's time to bring Smith into the '90s," she said.

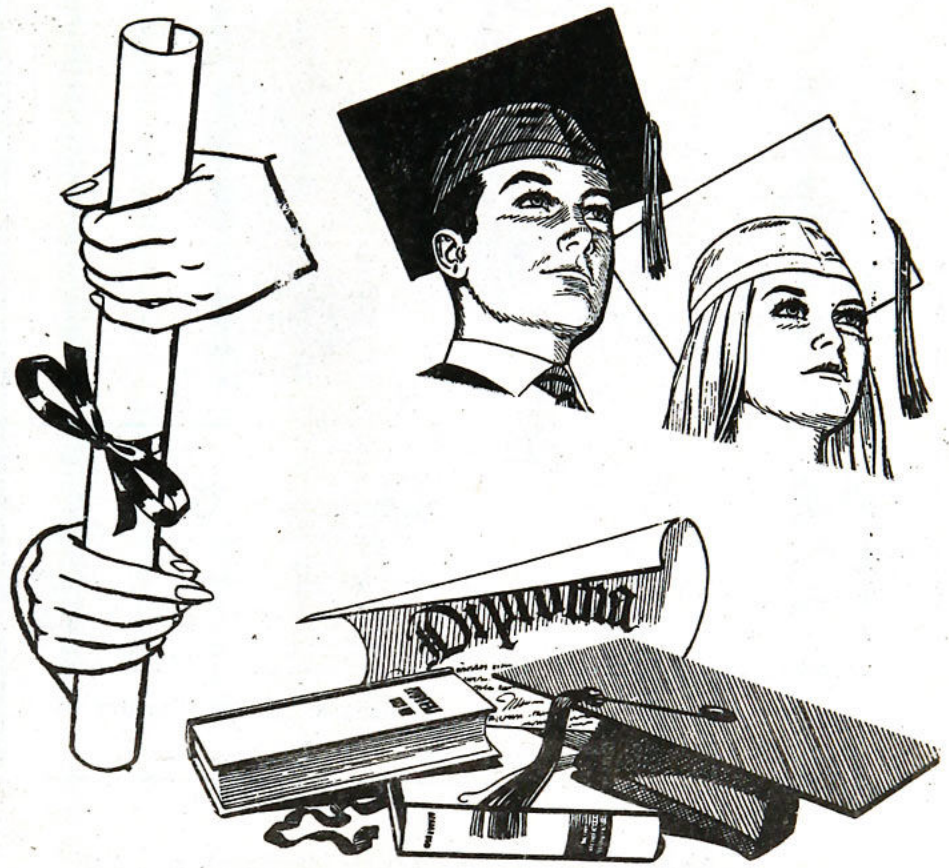

More typical of campus groups nationwide, WMU Students for Choice has not been very active since it held a candlelight vigil for Becky Bell, an Indian teenager who died in 1988 while attempting an illegal abortion, Virva reported.

"There's nothing for us to do," she explained.

Monarchs have chance to play regionals

By Michelle Berens
Editor

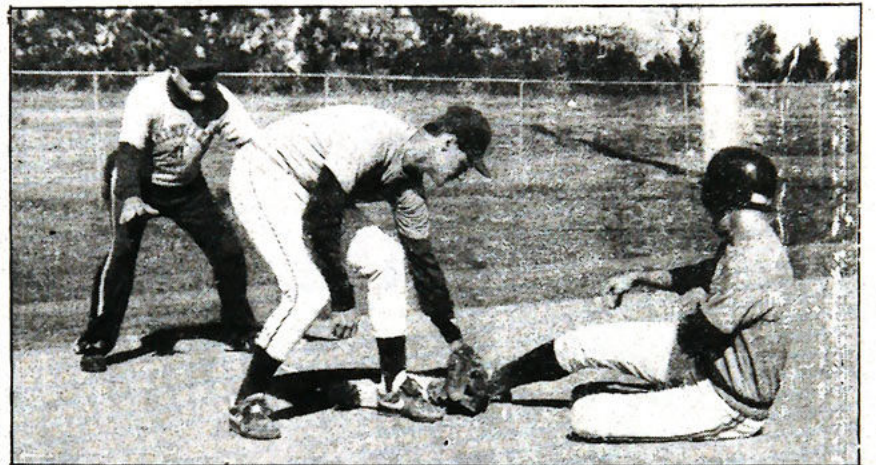

The Saint Leo Monarchs stand at 22-21 with six games left including four conference games. The Monarchs have an opportunity for third place and to play at regionals if they win the next six games.

"We were leading the conference and doing very well in the beginning," states Coach Fred Cambria. But he is disappointed with the number of wins the team has.

Nonetheless, Cambria feels that it's been a very good season for the Monarchs.

The standout point this year has been the pitching. Cambria says, "The pitchers have done a real fine job. We've done a pretty good job hitting. The defense has been fair, but it could have been better." "
